Review 6.5/10

Be warned, this place is not licensed and does not take plastic. Service was a little indifferent – pointed in direction of restaurant and told to pick a table. Popadoms arrived quickly though no drink order taken. Had lamb tikka to start which tasted like it had been braised and had no tikka flavour. Madras main course was excellent, although unusual in that you eat straight from the wok rather than getting a plate. Would have got higher marks if licensed and able to take plastic but worth a visit for the chicken madras.
